

To Whom It May Concern,

It is my sincere pleasure to recommend Eric Laudrum for a position at your company. I have worked alongside Eric for the past three years on a range of collaborative and technical projects, and I can confidently say he would be a valuable addition to any team.

Eric is a thoughtful and highly analytical person with a natural curiosity about both people and systems. He approaches his work with a strong sense of organization and accuracy, and takes pride in doing things properly. While still early in his professional career, he has developed a solid understanding of programming fundamentals, product development, and documentation. He is methodical in his approach, keeps clear and detailed notes, and consistently looks for ways to write clean, efficient, and maintainable code.

Over the past three years, while completing his Computer Programming and Analysis diploma at George Brown Polytechnic, I have seen significant growth in both his technical ability and confidence. He has become increasingly comfortable working across different technologies and has shown a strong ability to learn quickly and apply new concepts in practical ways.

In addition to his technical skills, Eric brings a unique perspective through his background in Sociology, which informs how he thinks about users, data, and real-world application.

Eric is dependable, curious, and committed to improving his craft. I have no doubt that he will continue to grow and make meaningful contributions in a professional setting.

I highly recommend him without reservation.

Sincerely,

Andrew Campbell
